DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 1,2,25,26,28 and 29 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter that was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. There is no description in the specification as originally filed of a workpiece including at least one vibration damper, nor is it shown in the drawings.

2. Claim 2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. It is confusing and contradictory in claim 1 to recite that the at least one of the holder and the carrier structure includes the vibration damper and then in claim 2 recite that the vibration damper is between the holder and the workpiece or between the holder and the carrier structure. If the holder includes the vibration damper than the vibration damper cannot be between the holder and anything else because it is part of the holder. Similarly if the carrier includes the vibration damper than the vibration damper cannot be between the carrier and anything else.

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Art Unit: 1725

4. Claims 1,2,25, and 26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Lee, Jr. in U.S. Patent No. 4,530,507. Lee, Jr. discloses a fixed carrier structure (28), a holder (elements 36 and 42) that includes a vibration damper (element 50). As shown in figure 4, bolts 40 are used to bolt the holder to the support structure.

5. Claims 1,2,25,26,28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Kowalski et al. in U.S. Patent No. 4,309,849. Kowalski et al. discloses a workpiece (22), a holder (34) including parts for holding the workpiece (42,46) that are made of a rubbery material (see column 3, lines 12-14), and a carrier structure (spindle 54). The fastener 62 is screwed to ensure accurate positioning and direct contact between the holder and the workpiece.

6. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Nogami et al. in Japan Patent No. 8-117,968. Nogami et al. has a holder with holding parts (39,40) for holding the workpiece (A) and holding parts (41) for connecting the holder to a carrier structure (see element 11 in figure 1), and at least one vibration damper (element 22).

7. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

8. Claim 29 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kowalski et al. in view of United Kingdom Patent No. 1,051,548. United Kingdom Patent No.

Art Unit: 1725

1,051,548 teaches having the dampening material (element 22) in a recess of the carrier (element 18). It would have been obvious to adapt Kowalski et al. in view of United Kingdom Patent No. 1,051,548 to provide this to ensure that the dampening material is in the proper position.

9. Applicant's arguments filed May 16, 2003 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant argues that the rolls (element 50) in Lee do not serve to dampen vibrations. This is not correct since Lee specifically states in column 2, lines 60-64 that "the vibration dampening members comprise disk shaped rollers 50".

10. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Switzerland Patent No. 665-985 discloses a dampening system for a workpiece.
